4. Scope of Work

Under the People Against Violence in Elections (PAVE) program, IFES will work with the selected partner to train and continue to engage community leaders, particularly young people and women, with the skills needed to anticipate and respond to election-related conflict drivers within program target districts. Trained leaders will go on to implement community initiatives that mitigate drivers of conflict stemming from a range of causes, including election tensions and gender-based harassment.

IFES intends to train 600 participants through the PAVE program, with each implementing partner delivering PAVE in one or more districts. As such, applicants should specify in their response which provinces they are able to cover, noting that they must be prepared to deliver training to the target numbers outlined in the below breakdown. For example, if an applicant is proposing to deliver training in Punjab and KP, they should plan to train 200 participants, 100 per province.

Punjab	Balochistan	Sindh	KP
100 people	100 people	300 people	100 people

Conduct PAVE Training:

The selected partner will be responsible for working with IFES to contextualize and deliver the modular PAVE trainings. The partner will work with IFES to adapt the existing training modules to the Pakistan context; identify participants for the program; and conduct the trainings, including collection of monitoring and evaluation data. The long-term goal of this program is to cultivate community-based approaches to resolving conflict in a constructive and non-violent way, contributing to a more peaceful and inclusive electoral environment. The training will prioritize the participation of women, youth, and minorities.

Deliverables:

- Develop a training plan on where these trainings will take place in collaboration with IFES. IFES will provide initial drafts of the training materials for partner input.
- Make recommendations of how the current modules should be tailored to have a maximum impact in the Pakistan context, working in collaboration with IFES.
- Identify facilitators to participate in a ToT, who are then able to train other participants throughout the region.
- Translate training modules and materials into local languages as needed
- Conduct the modular PAVE program, with each participant involved in three, three-day training programs for a total of nine trainings per participant. The total number of participants in the scope and budget will depend on which province(s) the applicant is proposing to cover (see above chart). Note that applicant may propose just one province, or up to four.
  - For participant selection, IFES will rely on the network of the local partner for determining potential participants for this training program.

- The local partner should ensure that at least half of the participants are young people, with an emphasis on young women, youth from minority groups, and young people with disabilities.
- Sign MoUs with universities and colleges and youth groups for engagement and training of PAVE participants.
- Engage peace mentors, biker groups, religious leaders and local influentials for resolving conflict in a constructive and non-violent way, contributing to a more peaceful and inclusive electoral environment and promoting peace through inter-faith harmony among communities and on social media.
- Provide IFES with participant lists, photographs of trainings, monitoring and evaluation data and training reports for each training.

Community Action Plans and Alumnae Engagement:

Between and after each module, participants will carry out community assignments focused on peacebuilding and conflict mitigation. The selected organization will oversee the assignments, including tracking participants' progress in meeting their goals.

- Devise a system to provide micro grants to PAVE graduates to implement action plans starting from core module training, if needed
- Establish and facilitate a Community of Practice (CoP) forum/community-based group of PAVE Alumnae at the tehsil and district level, where they will be meeting bi-monthly to discuss the progress of their community-based assignments, share challenges, extend support and develop plans for the execution of the mutual initiatives.
- Arrange lessons learned workshop for PAVE graduates for showcasing and experience sharing.
- Develop a form that the local partner will be responsible for filling out to document peacebuilding activities that take place during the period of performance of this award.
- Hold regular weekly or monthly check-ins with participants on the progress they were able to make on engaging in these activities with their respective communities and gather data on these trainings to populate the developed forms.
- Provide IFES with updates on the community advocacy events through submission of forms and monthly reports as per monitoring and evaluation section below.
- Develop partnerships with local government for regular progress review and coordination meetings involving the PAVE community.
- Arrange for experience sharing and exposure visits of PAVE graduates in cross districts.
- Develop and maintain a coordination Portal for all PAVE participants across Pakistan.
- Design, print and disseminate relevant IEC materials for the general public awareness Online & community-based campaigns- Each material should be converted into braille and sign language to make it more inclusive.
- Engage a videographer to document the project documentary to be finalized with IFES consultation.
