Mike on the Issues

Economic Policy Should Serve Society

The economy should serve society, not the other way around. Improving working conditions is an affordable goal – raising the minimum wage, providing better health and child care benefits, and increasing time with families.

Affordable Health Care is a Right

Every citizen should have access to affordable, available health care. Vice President Gore's plan brings us closer to that goal. Prescription drug benefits must be available and the military retiree health care system must be reformed.

Let's Keep Great Public Education

My children received an excellent education in Virginia's public schools. But lack of qualified teachers, insufficient classroom space, and poorly implemented standardized testing threaten that excellence.

Opportunity is not Equal

Opportunity is not equal for many Americans – poor education, jobs remote from workers, lack of public transportation, child care and family planning resources – as well as discrimination – limit opportunity.

Let's Live, Work, and Play in One Place

Improved public transportation and incentives for telecommuting should be coupled with road and other infrastructure improvements and smart growth.

Federal Employees are the Key to Good Government

Federal employees should be able to take their ideas to a Congress that believes government can do the right thing.
