4. Scope of Work

The estimated 90 million Southeast Asians with disabilities¹ encounter attitudinal, communication, environmental and institutional barriers as they take part in the lives of their communities. In December 2018, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) launched a new plan to integrate human rights of persons with disabilities into the ASEAN Community framework. The ASEAN Enabling Masterplan 2025: Mainstreaming the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (the Enabling Masterplan) a policy document that is aligned with the United Nations (UN) Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) and Sustainable Development Goals, builds on the region's commitments to create a barrier-free community. The launch the Enabling Masterplan may prove inconsequential if not internalized by Member States through their own domestic policy making processes. The "Strengthening the Capacity of Advocacy Networks in Southeast Asia" (SCANSEA) project is designed to achieve the goal of government action to respect and promote disability rights.

According to the World Health Organization, about 60 percent of persons with disabilities are women. Persons with disabilities are members of every group in society. Women with disabilities; lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer and intersex (LGBTQI+) persons with disabilities; and members of ethnic and religious minorities with disabilities should be integrated into civil society initiatives. CSOs working toward access to healthcare, education, political participation, and other issue areas can leverage ASEAN's commitment to these topic areas through the Enabling Masterplan. CSOs can work toward mitigating intersectional barriers to an inclusive society, which are faced by persons with multiple social identities. Recognizing the intersectionality of disability rights with the rights of other marginalized groups can lead to solutions that ensure better access to rights of all people.

IFES seeks a CSO partner in Cambodia to build an intersectional advocacy coalition to advocate for the implementation of the Enabling Masterplan; the meaningful political participation of marginalized persons with disabilities; and an enabling environment for all persons. CSOs should actively employ strategies to include DPOs and persons with disabilities.

The implementing partner will form an intersectional coalition, which should at include at least one DPO partner, to implement the following activities:

- a. Conduct advocacy initiatives, which could include, but are not limited to, advocating for specific issues related to disability inclusion; raising awareness (through social and traditional media) of inclusion of multiply-marginalized groups (such as LGBTQI+ persons with disabilities) under the Enabling Masterplan; collecting data on the implementation of specific Enabling Masterplan action points for target groups (such as youth with disabilities); hosting townhall forum style event(s) with DPOs and other allied stakeholder groups. Coalitions should also collaborate with media professionals and election management bodies, national human rights institutions (NHRIs) or other agencies committed to mainstreaming the rights of persons with disabilities.
- b. Support DPO-led intersectional advocacy coalitions and provide technical assistance, in coordination with IFES, as needed.

¹ According to the World Health Organization, approximately 15 percent of the world's population has a disability.

- c. Participate in monthly regional partner calls and virtual conferences to contribute to learning and knowledge sharing on best practices for disability inclusion across ASEAN.
- d. Submit quarterly activity reports and one final report covering the development and implementation of coalition-building activities, outcomes, lessons learned, challenges and recommendations.

Required Expertise and Experience

The implementing partner must meet the following requirements:

- Be a local non-governmental and non-partisan organization or institution (Registered)
- Possess in-house institutional expertise on rights-based advocacy and/or supporting marginalized groups.
- Have experience working with election management bodies, NHRIs and government stakeholders especially centered around elections.
- Have experience developing and implementing joint advocacy activities such as awareness raising campaigns, preferably related to disability inclusion.

If Applicable, applicants must ensure that funds are included in the grant budget for an audit.
- IFES will issue the appropriate grant mechanism depending on the nature of the work, the capacity of the grantee, the duration of the grant, and the overall value of the grant.
